

CNS

Cognitive Neuroscience Society

Committed to the development of mind and brain research.

HOMEABOUTANNUAL MEETINGMEMBERSHIPNEWS CENTERAWARDS

Like 2k

Follow 696 followers

Recent News

When We See But Don't See: Using Illusions to Test Our Perceptions

Holiday Blues? Identifying Markers for Anxiety in the Brain

Why We So Often Blame the Person and Not the Situation

Detection of Light in Blind People Illuminates Light's Non-Visual Roles

Pennies for Treats: Dieting Through Brain Training

Twitter Feed

When We See But Don't See: Using Illusions to Test Our Perceptions

Using an illusion to explore whether we can see something consciously but just not be able to report it...read more “ Cognitive Neuroscience—with its concern about perception, action, memory, language and selective attention—will increasingly come to represent the central focus of all Neurosciences in the 21st century.

– Eric R. Kandel, M.D. (Nobel Laureate)

